Sensational Defeat of Derby Favourites

HYDROPLANE WINS THE CLASSIC EVENT

Trentbridge Beats Diana Bay

There were quite enough upsets yesterday to make the racing interesting, and from the point of view of the racegoer, the day's sport was a thorough success, although the track itself could not possibly have been worse.

The rain which threatened to spoil the day, fortunately held off after 11 a.m. and for the rest of the afternoon, although it was overcast, it did not rain. There were inches of water on the track which was very badly cut up before the Derby came to be run.

The public spread their support evenly in the Derby.
Soldier of Britain carrying a shade more tickets than the others. The race was a very slow one, and the winner was Hydroplane, who came home in front of Bright View and New Star. The two candidates from the "Soldier" stable and the two from the "Hem" stable were both unplaced.

Racing Boy Beaten By Partnership

Another sensation during the day was the defeat of Racing Boy in the Garrison Cup by Partnership. The ex-champion sub did not feel at all comfortably in the dash and it was all his jockey could do to get him among the vanguard in the home straight.

Diana Bay, who narrowly averted defeat in the China Stakes, started in the Victoria Stakes where Trentbridge was also a starter. Mrs. Pearce's pony ran beautifully and convincingly defeated the ex-champion.

Mutiny Bay in the second race and Don in the tenth race paid big dividends, while a pleasing feature of the day's racing was the success of Mr. Ho Kom Tong's Classic Hall.

HOW THE DERBY WAS RUN
There were thirteen starters in the Derby and Mr. Sleep sent off the field to a good start. Gladiator took the lead, but before the Rock was reached, Electric Star was sent in front, with the obvious intention of setting the pace. The pony drew ahead by a good ten lengths after the first half mile, when it was seen that Soldier of Britain, Gladiator, Soldier of China and Hydroplane were lying in a bunch behind him with Prima Donna and New Star a little further behind and Music Hall with Ribble bringing up the rear.

After once round, Electric Star dropped rapidly out of the running and Soldier of Britain, Gladiator, Hydroplane were leading at the Rock with Soldier of China running within a couple of lengths of them and Prima Donna leaving the rear to join with the leaders. There was plenty of change in the furlong before the straight. Hydroplane drew in front, and the two "Soldiers" were running about four lengths behind him with New Star making up ground rapidly and Bright View coming into the picture for the first time.

Once the field swung into the straight, Mr. Proulx on Hydroplane swerved right out, but he had a substantial lead and the swerving did not cause him to lose it. Both the "Soldiers" tired rapidly, while Bright View passed them followed by New Star. For a moment it looked as though Bright View was going to offer Hydroplane a challenge, but as both ponies were very tired, Mr. Proulx managed to retain the lead he had and won.
New Star was a poor third, Soldier of Britain was fourth and Lemberg fifth.

THE TOWER STAKES
There were twenty-one starters in the first race which went to Surprise, ridden by Mr. F. Marshall. In Good Time, with Mr.
Soares up took the lead, but Mr.
Heard on Young Chap and Surprise quickly went up and there were the only three ponies in the race until the bend for the home straight when the leader was passed.
Chow Fan came up with a big rush in the last furlong to take third place, while in the meantime Surprise easily shook off Young

Chap and won by two lengths.

THE FIFTH STAKES
Mutiny Bay won this race easily from Princess Angeline and Just That. A very fast pace was set by Neil Gwyn but the pony was spent before the race was half over. Saucy Face followed Just
That into the race with Mutiny Bay and Princess Angeline closing up rapidly. Mutiny Bay showed a great burst of speed in the home straight and won easily from Princess Angeline who was a neck in front of Just That.

THE TYRO STAKES
With 26 starters in this five furlong race, the field was sent off in a scramble. Oak Bay, one of the favourites was left and, all things considered, did well to come through to take fourth place.
Budge got the lead and King's Fancy managed to come alongside of him, early in the race. High Speed came along in the straight to pass Budge and to provide an exciting finish with King's Fancy, winning by half a length.

THE VICTORIA STAKES
A very classy field started in the Victoria Stakes and the public was treated to a great race between Diana Bay and Trentbridge. The other starters were Sacko, Cossack's Beauty, Boxing Eve and Flying Tourist. Sacko took the lead, but had to give it to Diana Bay at the five furlong post.
Trentbridge lay third, running comfortably. Into the straight Diana Bay was leading with Trentbridge just passing Sacko. The two ponies were dead level at the distance post, with Diana Bay on the rails. Trentbridge was asked for an effort here and responded immediately, while Diana Bay tired rapidly and it was all Fros could do to avert being beaten by Sacko, who came along with a very strong finish.

THE GARRISON CUP.
Racing Boy, the favourite was beaten by Partnership in the Garrison Cup over a mile. The race was a fast one, considering the state of the course. Pih, on Racing Boy, had a bad run at the start and never seemed comfortable after that. Burgomaster and Warrington fought for third place,
the former just winning.

THE MONGOLIAN STAKES
Classic Hall turned the tables on Cavalcade in The Mongolian Stakes and fully avenged his defeat in the Valleys. D. S. Li rode the winner and there never was any doubt as to the result once it was seen that Classic Hall had got a fairly decent start. Cavalcade had to carry a penalty of 7 pounds in this race. Sarabande was third.

THE MELBOURNE CUP
None of the new ponies (except St. Joan) started in this race which resolved itself into a struggle between the champions of the past three years, viz. Woodland Stag, Polar Star and Light Star. They finished in that order, Woodland Stag winning easily from Polar

TO-DAY'S PROSPECTS

Able Amazon looks the best thing for the Rooky Hill Derby where the opposition will probably compose of Bronze Era, Atlas, Alachity and Mutiny Bay. A rattling race should be seen and if the course is not in the same wretched condition as it was yesterday, the time should be good.

The Subscription Griffins Challenge Cup should be another excellent race, where Classic Hall, Surprise and Cavalcade will probably dispute the issue. The race is very open with the odds slightly in favour of Mr. Ho Kom Tong's Candidate.

The Royal Navy Cup, in the absence of Racing Boy and Partnership, looks a very open affair, and Warrington has a good chance of winning. Burgomaster on the form displayed yesterday should get very near. If the track is a bit drier and harder, Gay Butterfly do very well and may even win, as he appeared in difficulty when running in the mud yesterday, but came along beautifully when Mr.
Soares put him on the outside (where it is still turf) in the home straight. He is the best outsider of the day!

Prima Donna, Lemberg, Gladiator and Soldier of China have yet to win a race and it looks as though they are going to make the griffins' races interesting to-day.

THE CHALKER CUP
Don putting up a surprisingly good race just "pipped" Navy Hall failed in the home straight. With this result they never had a look in Liberty Bay had everything to home many lengths ahead of Foreign Minister's Plight: Soccer And Baseball Finance: Ruth's £20,000 A Year: Peterborough—The Earl: Oxford House Jubilee

(Special Air-Mail Service)

DOOR-N ECHO OF THE PAST

Details of the celebrations at Doorn of the ex-Kaiser's 75th birthday indicate that, although expenses were cut down, an attempt was made to recall the brilliance of former days.

The dress for dinner prescribed by decree of the head of the household was, I hear: Gentlemen in field grey or other full dress uniforms and high boots; ladies in low-cut gowns with jewels and diadems.

Earlier in the day, dress had been more sombre. The direction for the family gathering in the morning, which was followed by prayers, was:

Gentlemen in black, and ladies with high collars and small hats. For luncheon the ladies were allowed to remove their high collars.

FOREIGN MINISTER'S FLIGHT

Some of his comments are 'very apt.'

The Paul-Boncour exhibit he describes as 'the cry of a man who finds himself in a situation of great difficulty'—which is certainly appropriate to any Foreign Minister in these times.

He proceeds to say that the man is shaken by grave inner conflict; a heavy responsibility fills his mind, day and night, and he is not sure that the road he has chosen is the right one.

The irregular circle in the middle is according to M. Schermann, like a fixed idea, almost an obsession, around which defences are constructed. The uncertain lines, again, reveal deep anxiety.

"PSYCHOGRAPHOLOGY"

While Cabinet-making proceeds in Paris a special interest attaches to the drawings which I reproduce to-day.

They are absent-minded scribbles by members of the late French Ministry at their meetings. They may almost be said to represent a new peril to public men. The magazine "Vie" submitted them to a "psychographologist," M. Raphael Schermann, for analysis, without telling him, however, what they were.

Besides an expert knowledge of handwriting M. Schermann claims to possess a kind of sixth sense by which he can divine character from the most casual strokes of the pen.

SOCCER AND BASEBALL FINANCE

I wonder what our Soccer stars think when they read that Babe Ruth, at the age of 39, has signed on for another season with the New York Yankees baseball team at a salary of £7,000.

The earnings of professional footballers in England are limited to £3 a week, during the eight months' playing season and £6 a week for the remaining four months—under £400 a year.

Yet these players are drawing crowds which in three instances on Saturday carried the receipts to over £4,000.

Highbury, the Arsenal and Crystal Palace match drew £4,856.

RUTH'S £20,000 A YEAR

Babe Ruth's contract—probably, at his age, the last player-contract he will sign—shows a drop of over £3,000 compared with his salary for last year.

Even so, it is, I gather, £3,000 higher than the salary the Yankees' president had in mind. He "figured" that he ought to be able to get Ruth for £4,000. In 1931, when Ruth was at the zenith of his career, he earned £20,000.

In one respect the negotiations seem to have been unique. They were concluded without public argument, and in a matter of minutes.

I think our Football Association system is the better. It acts as a brake on a rich club acquiring a complete team of stars.

PETERBOROUGH—THE EARL

At the Queen Anne Exhibition in Chesterfield House many eyes will be attracted by Kneller's fine portrait of the Earl of Peterborough, made familiar by Houlbraken's engraving.

Charles Mordaunt, the third earl, best remembered for his wanderings about Spain, which were so costly to Anne, was a man of many offices.

Admiral, general diplomatist, and intriguer, and, incidentally, Captain-General in the Spanish service, he also figured among the "noble poets." But all he wrote is forgotten save his "I said to my heart between sleeping and waking."

OXFORD HOUSE JUBILEE

Oxford House, Bethnal-green, the pioneer of university settlements in the East-end of London, is preparing to celebrate its Jubilee.

At a meeting at Balliol College in January, 1934, it was resolved "that it is desirable that steps be taken in Oxford to provide facilities for University men or others intending to reside or work in the East-end of London."

Looking over the contemporary report of the meeting, I notice that among the committee appointed to carry out the scheme were "C. G. Lang, Esq., Balliol," and "M. E. Sadler, Esq., Trinity."

The one is now Archbishop of Canterbury and the other is Sir Michael Sadler, Master of University College.

POPULAR FLOOR SHOWS

I wrote the other day of the "Brighter London," which is encouraging the trend of foreign tourist traffic to England.

Appropos of London's gayer night life, several directors of big hotels with whom I was talking yesterday assured me that the introduction of supper-time entertainments in their restaurants has had a beneficial effect on the general business.

In this sphere there seems to be a tendency to place less reliance on the drawing power of isolated cabaret turns, and to offer instead ambitious floor shows of the kind popular in America.

LORD REVELSTOCK'S VERSATILITY

In Lord Revelstoke was found that versatility of talent which is almost a tradition of the Baring family.

While he was a familiar figure in the City, he remained essentially a lover of the open air. He played tennis—real tennis—and many other games; in no less degree he enjoyed the arts and the society of artists.

He was a first-class classical scholar, and he had that mastery of pure English which seems to grow increasingly rarer among public men. There were no publications under his own name, though he certainly wrote a number of unsigned articles.

Yet another of his attainments is indicated by the fact that he was at one time a member of a Bach choir.

AMERICAN CARS FOR 1934

Wide adoption of independent front-wheel springing, true streamlined body forms, and various methods of raising engine horse-power into the "100" class are the outstanding efforts of American car makers in their 1934 products. Two hundred and fifty models of all manufacturers (except Ford) went on exhibition for a week at New York's thirty-fourth National Automobile Show. Ford cars were displayed late in December and attracted a record popular interest. Attendance at the general showings indicated expectation interest in all brands of automobiles for the year 1934.

As the Show opened most manufacturers had now announced prices for the 1934 models, and many of them showed a tendency to wait for the announcements of their competitors.

Compression Ratios
All American cars now use down-draft carburation. Most makers have increased the compression ratio of the engines, and many use aluminium cylinder heads. The fully automatic gear box did not materialise as a 1934 improvement. To date Rec is the only car in which the gear-shift lever has been abolished, although several forms of the vacuum-controlled clutch, with free wheeling incorporated. Herringbone gears are used more widely and transmission noises have consequently been reduced.

Some form of controlled ventilation was in use on nearly every enclosed car in the Show. All General Motors cars use some form of independent front-wheel suspension. Chrysler and several of the independent manufacturers are also sponsoring this development. Ford continues to use the transverse-spring suspension which has been a feature of his cars for many years. On the La Fayette, a new "light" car introduced this year by Nash, independent front-wheel suspension is optional.

Graham uses a centrifugal supercharger on the larger cars and obtains a considerable increase in engine horse-power. Only Stutz and Duesenberg have used such a device within recent years, and its previous use in a production-line car does not come to mind. Considerable attention to ease of steering has been given to nearly all cars. With the independent wheel suspension cross-link steering rules and less wheel-tight and "shimmy" are said to be results.

On the De Soto and larger Chryslers frame and body are constructed as a single bridge-truss unit, and rigidity far beyond that previously obtained is claimed. Generally speaking, there are more high-output generators in use, so that the cars will have an adequate supply of current in the face of increased battery drain. More valve-seat inserts are used. Low-pressure tyres of small diameter have found more favour with manufacturers and are standard equipment on several cars. Hydraulic brakes are used on several more cars than formerly, and clutch action is softer.

A brief review follows of the outstanding innovations on each car exhibited.

Auburn—Two series of eight-cylinder cars, one of twelve, and two sixes are offered. One six-cylinder car enters a price class lower than Auburn has previously competed in. The eights have all-steel unit-welded bodies, and controllable ventilation. The dual-ratio rear axle is continued on the Custom eight. Body designs do not depart radically from conventional usage, but have been considerably refined. Hydraulic brakes are used on the eights. New shock absorbers not affected by changes in temperature are standard equipment.

Buick—The three series of new Buicks use independent front-wheel suspension with helical springs and cushion tyres. Power brakes actuated by a vacuum-servo mechanism are provided. An "octane selector" is provided so that spark timing can be regulated from the dash, to permit the use of either regular or "premium" fuels. In common with other General Motors cars, Buick uses the no-draught ventilation system. The bodies are new in accordance with the slant-back trend.

Cadillac—Eights, twelves, and sixteens have independently suspended front wheels. (Cadillac was the first of the General Motors units to experiment with this development.) Push-button starting and automatic choke are provided. The hand-brake is now controlled by a lever under the instrument panel. Bodies have been refined to reduce wind resistance and air-tum in the higher speed ranges. As heretofore, production of the V-16 will be limited to 400 cars a year.

Chrysler—The new Chryslers have a longer wheelbase, carry an 80 h.p. engine, a redesigned, more rigid frame, and have independently sprung front wheels. A "starterator" device starts the engine when the throttle is depressed. Bodies are roomier, and a great deal of attention has been paid to insulating them against noise. The radiator core is of copper for better cooling.

Chrysler—Body designs on the Chrysler eights are probably the most radical of those shown on American cars this year. True streamline forms are used, and it is claimed that a 40 per cent. reduction in wind resistance and a 60 per cent. reduction in air-tum at high speeds have been attained. On the larger cars an over-drive transmission, automatically effective above 45 m.p.h. is used. In the speed range above this figure a 30 per cent. reduction in engine speed results. The engine is well over the front axle, so that rear-seat passengers ride considerably forward of the rear axle. Better weight distribution in the car is said to give a much improved ride. On the Chrysler sixes independently sprung front wheels are used, and the body design is more conventional.

De Soto—The De Soto follows the body design adopted for the larger Chryslers and is described as being even more efficient aerodynamically. The engine develops 100 h.p. Ventilation of the enclosed bodies can be controlled.

Dodge—The new Dodge sixes carry independently sprung front wheels. The engines give 82 h.p. The brakes are designed for more efficient cooling of the drums. A high-compression aluminium-alloy cylinder head is optional equipment. Bodies have been redesigned to obtain a streamline effect.

Ford (exhibited separately).

The V8 car for 1934 has improvements designed to produce greater engine power, greater economy and improved riding qualities. In interiors and exteriors of the bodies show interesting refinements and a controllable ventilation system has been added. Transverse springs are retained, but their rate has been modified to give a much improved ride. A cast alloy-steel crank-shaft is said to be lighter and more rigid. A dual manifold is provided on the carburettor.

Franklin—This car continues to be the only air-cooled engine

PLANS TO MAKE ROADS SAFER

Severer Penalties For Carelessness

Comprehensive proposals for preventing road accidents, presented to the Minister of Transport by the Automobile Association and the Royal Automobile Club, were published recently. They include:

Automobile Association
Regular road safety propaganda, based on a simplified Highway Code, and with financial support from the Government, through the Press, wireless, cinemas, posters, schools, and churches.

Better road surfaces, elimination of level-crossings, and removal of obstructed sight lines.

Special crossing-places for pedestrians and more subways, refuges, and footpaths.

Recognition by motorists of the "off-side rule" at cross-roads, giving way to a vehicle approaching from the right.

The R.A.C. is opposed to the suggestion that applicants for a driving licence should submit to a compulsory examination of driving ability.

model in American production. A twelve-cylinder and two eights will be produced, with refinements in the bodies and better riding qualities.

Graham—The centrifugally supercharged engine of the Graham Custom eight develops 135 h.p. at 4,000 r.p.m. The sweeping curvature of the front of the car has been accentuated, and longer, more flexible springs are provided. Ventilation can be controlled. A standard eight and a six also appear in the line.

Hudson—Hudson uses independent springing of the "axle-flex" type. Ventilation in the bodies is improved, and a 7 to 1 compression head can be obtained as optional equipment. The riding quality is such that the shock absorbers do not come into play on ordinary road surfaces, but reserve their full effect for extraordinary road conditions.

Hupmobile—Bodies on the new Hupmobiles are among the most advanced on the 1934 cars. The ventilating system has been improved to allow more control. The engines have four-point suspension cushioned by rubber.

La Fayette—Designed as a low-priced companion to the Nash car, the La Fayette incorporates many features usually found on cars in a much higher price range. The engine 75 h.p., a synchro-shift transmission is used. Independently sprung front wheels are optional, and a ventilating system is standard. The car has a wheelbase of 113 inches. The car is exceptionally well-insulated from body and engine noises.

La Salle—These cars have been completely redesigned for 1934. They are longer and lower, and the bodies are among the most attractive of the more conventional kind exhibited. The price has been considerably reduced. "Kneeaction" front wheels are standard. A stabiliser bar at the rear of the chassis tends to prevent side sway.

Oldsmobile—A new line of low-priced sixes supplements the series of eights. Both cars embody the new wheel suspension and have power brakes adjustable at the dash for any foot pressure desired.

MOTOR JOTTINGS

THE CAR THAT WAITS

A WELL-PROPORTIONED CAR

The 5 Seater, 4-Light Saloon, Steye is a modern, well proportioned and spacious type of coachwork for all purposes.

Easy access through four wide doors, each with winding handle window. Front seats adjustable for length. Seat backs adjustable for inclination and can be folded right back horizontal. Best quality cloth upholstery. Roof inset of black leather fabric. Neat and convenient pockets. Sloping adjustable front windscreen (unsplinterable). Tandem arm electric windscreen wiper. Capacious built-in luggage trunk; spare wheel carried on trunk flap.

Equipment includes: Front bumper. Electric and wind horns. Driving mirror. Electric cigar lighter and recessed front pillar direction indicators. Interior roof lamps. Ash tray. Back-light blind operated from driver's seat. Stay-Vigot jack raising the whole car half side.

Choice of various colour schemes.

The race was over, and almost everyone had left by now; even that orderless queue of spectators' cars which had seemed jammed so hopelessly in the narrow entrance gates had somehow drained away; a few policemen, their job of guarding the course completed, were standing about in idly chatting groups; a Boy Scout ran errands for officials who were still busy checking up results for the umpteenth time; and a watery sun shone down through the trees, glistening with rain drops of the passing storm.

Only one car was left, down in the paddock, conspicuous in its loneliness—a magnificent sports model. Long flowing mudguards and an open four-seater body could not disguise the racing stock from which it came. That same sloping radiator was a familiar feature of the latest Grand Prix cars. As it stood there facing the long straight, which stretched down to that difficult right-hand turn, the car seemed almost proud, defiant in its desertion.

Half an hour before, the fastest racing cars in the world had swept down the hill in, one screaming mob, past the applauding people in the stands and pits—the red, the blue, and solitary green. Alfa, Maserati, Bugatti, and one green English car, privately entered and privately built by a wealthy patriot; the same Englishman who swerved with the rest of them into that difficult right-hand turn, had driven to the course in the sports car, now left deserted in the paddock.

Down by that wicked right-hand bend lay a tangled, twisted heap. Twenty yards off the road, pathetically upside down, propped helplessly against a tree, just the wreck of the lone green car.

Right at the finish of the race, when high-strung nerves doped by the roar and constant rush, when the heat and dust of the early stages suddenly changed to a perilous slide through flying spray the leading car found that English one constantly worrying it, trying to edge through lap after lap, making an effort which had amazed, surprised, and then compelled the respect of the Continental aces. Together they had come down the straight, wheel to wheel, the red and the green, past the stands out of sight of an eager crowd which listened for that answering roar as they would accelerate away from the corner. The crowd heard only one roar come echoing back, it mocked in its unchallenged ecstasy. There was a horrible suspense, news leaked through of the crash, and the green car lay wrecked.

BRITISH FILMS

Coming To The Forefront

British films are steadily gaining recognition in all parts of the world. During the last four years English studios have pursued the wise policy of putting quality first and awaiting the moment when the general demand for their production would justify an increase in the quantity of films to be made. It would seem as if this moment has now come, to judge by the programmes of the various studios for the next few months.

In one studio alone no less than seven films were made in the month of December, and many others had been planned. Some of these films are being produced on a most lavish scale. The best directors, cameramen, writers and artists are engaged regardless of cost, and no pains are spared in the perfection of details. The films include spectacular and historical drama, musical comedies, films of travel, cartoons with sound accompaniment, and even "wild West" drama, of which Hollywood has hitherto had the monopoly. There is one film in preparation which promises to be not only an artistic triumph but of great general interest, and this is called "Man Of Aran". It deals with the lives of the simple folk who inhabit the Aran Islands off the Irish Coast, and gain a livelihood by fishing in the turbulent seas thereabouts. There is in this film a background of strange wild beauty which could not be imagined by anyone who had not visited the islands.

LOVE AND
LAUGHTERThe Indiscretions
Of Eve

"The Indiscretions of Eve," which was specially written, devised, composed and produced by Cecil Lewis for B.I.P. showing at Queen's is a romantic comedy extravaganza about Eve, a beautiful little brunette who falls in love with Peter, Earl of Windhelsea and Waterloo, on a New Year's Eve, unaware of his identity. She quarrels with her fiancé Ralph who, on awaking next morning is furious to find Peter occupying his bath room. This is the result of an accident the night before when Peter was knocked down and picked up by Ralph's people.

A quarrel ensues, and the Earl strides forth, still in night attire, just missing the arrival of Eve. Then follows a vast comedy of errors with Eve eventually run to earth in a wax works factory, beneath a plaster mould. Unfortunately Peter is not aware that Ralph manages the factory, and a slap-up fight ensues.

Steffi Duna and Fred Conyngham as Peter and Eve make their screen debut in this film, and are ably supported by Lester Mathews, Muriel Aked, Arthur Chesney, Clifford Heatherley, Hal Gordon, Teddy Brown and Marius B. Winter's band.

GERMAN FILM
IN CANTONFirst One Of Its Kind
To Be Shown

The German community in Canton had a treat last Tuesday when the first German Talkie to be heard in Canton, was screened at the Sun Wah Theatre. "Deutschland Erwacht"—the title of the film, was shown here sometime ago and as was previously reported in our columns, the film was excellently put over, the introduction being given by Herr Goebbels, Minister for Propaganda and pictures are shown of mass meetings in the Sport Palast in Berlin leading up to Hitler's accession to power in March 1933.

Hitler in his speech appears a fascinating character with plenty of "Stimmung" (there is no English equivalent word) and keeps his audience spell bound. Pictures are shown of Goering the Prussian Premier, Frick the Home Minister, General Mackensen, and last but not least, that wonderful figure, President von Hindenburg, the latter looking in excellent health in spite of his years.

Described as "Colleen Moore's successful come-back to the screen," the current attraction at the King's Theatre, "The Power and the Glory" is drawing extremely good houses as it is indeed an excellent film.

The selection of Miss Moore for the female lead, is in itself, a big compliment to that lady's capabilities. For Mr. Lasky, the producer, desired an actress possessing the emotional capabilities of a Helen Hayes. It is not detrimental to Miss Moore to say that his suggestion that she be given a test met with little encouragement from his production staff. Colleen Moore was a type. Everyone knew that. She was the first flapper to grace the screen.

A LOVE STORY OF LONG AGO

"Silver Dollar" At
Alhambra

One of the most romantic and most gossiped about love affairs of the 19th century is brought to the screen in "Silver Dollar," a First National picture, now showing at the Alhambra Theatre.

The screen play which was adapted by Carl Erickson and Harvey Thew from David Karsner's book of the glamorous days of the gold rush and silver strike in Colorado, takes for its central character, Yates Martin, the silver king, a part so well played by Edward G. Robinson.

Martin, after rising from poverty to riches, deserted his first wife to marry a younger and more dashing beautiful woman. One of the most popular characters of the time, because of his unequalled generosity, he could not believe that the gossip could hurt him politically, but when his party refused to run him for the U.S. Senate unless he gave up the younger woman, he refused and secured his appointment to a 30 day unexpired term in the Senate through his wealth and influence.

While a 30 day senator he married the girl at a spectacular and historical ceremony in Washington, attended by President Chester A. Arthur and officials, but not their wives.

Strangely enough, she stuck by him, when he lost his entire fortune. Bebe Daniels plays the leading feminine role, and Aline MacMahon, the part of the first wife. The picture was directed by Alfred E. Green.

Many Years in S'hai

Mr. Sellick and Mrs. S. S. Sellick left Shanghai for London on the ss. Rawalpindi after they had bidden goodbye to a large number of their friends at the Custom Jetty. Mr. Sellick, who came to Shanghai in 1899, is retiring Chief Engineer for Arnhold & Co. Ltd. because of failing health.

Mr. Sellick joined the Arnhold & Co. upon his arrival in Shanghai in 1899 and has been connected with the firm during the majority of his years in China. He was one of the officials associated with the founding of China General Omnibus Co., which is operated by Arnhold & Co. and in recent years was connected with the management of the bus system. He spent some time also with the Jardine Engineering Corporation.

At the outset of the Great War Mr. Sellick went back to England and became an officer in the Royal Corps. He took part in the tank attack on the Western Front and attained the rank of major returned to China at the close of the war.

Old-time members of the Shanghai Volunteer Corps will regret the departure of Mr. Sellick, as he was active in the affairs of the Corps in his early Shanghai days, was especially noted as an instructor in musketry, in which capacity he served the S.V.C. for a period of time.

Return Of Lord Londonderry

EXPERIENCES OF HIS EASTERN TOUR

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, Feb. 7.

Lord Londonderry, Secretary of State for Air, who returned to London yesterday at the end of his 16,000 miles' tour of R.A.F. stations in the middle East and India, gave some particulars of his experiences and impressions. Among his adventures was a certain amount of night flying, a 15-hours' air journey against a 50 miles an hour headwind, and an encounter with a violent down-draught over the mountains near Quetta, in which his aeroplane lost 2,000ft. of height in 10sec.

The very long day's flight occurred on the homeward journey. The Imperial Airways liner, which cruises at about 135 miles an hour, needed 15 hours to make the 850 miles between Sharjah, on the Arabian coast, and Baghdad. Three calls had to be made for fuel. "But," said Lord Londonderry, "the pilot was determined to get through, and we spent 15 hours on a journey which should have been done in about nine." The experience of the strong vertical current took place when Lord Londonderry's military aeroplane was about to cross the mountains on the way to Quetta from the North-West Frontier on January 21. It was flying at a height of 9,000ft. when suddenly it was caught by the down-current and dropped 2,000ft. The down-draught persisted, and the pilot had to give up the intention of crossing the mountains and take a longer route around them.

Air Currents.

Remarking on the vagaries of air currents in mountain countries, Lord Londonderry said that a twin-engine machine which followed soon afterwards found an up-current where the earlier machine had found a down-current and was driven up from 9,000ft. to nearly 14,000ft.

Lord Londonderry was very much impressed with the way in which his schedule had been kept throughout the flight. The only case in which it failed was due to the disorganization on the railway between Paris and Brindisi on account of the railway accident just outside Paris. He spoke highly of the punctuality of Imperial Airways Services, and of the admirable arrangements of the R.A.F. for his flights, which were often made over very bad country like that between Akbar and Amman, and the whole of that over the North-West Frontier. He said that some of his flights over tribal territory reminded him of the remark of one of his pilots when he was flying over similar country in Kurdistan a year before: "You can thank your lucky stars you are behind a British engine."

The North-West Frontier.

Speaking of his Indian tour, he said he visited every R.A.F. station and every R.A.F. unit in India, talked to some of the men, and inspected the quarters institutes. He was satisfied that everything possible was being done for the health, comfort, and efficiency of officers and men, and that every care was taken to see that machines and equipment were kept in first-class condition. He was also delighted to find everywhere a keen spirit of enthusiasm in all ranks. His tour of the North-West Frontier enabled him to realize the beneficial influence exercised by Great Britain over this difficult area. In the task, which was being done there, the R.A.F. was working in the closest conjunction with the Army, and was developing that co-ordination of effort which could have no other result but increased economy and efficiency.

Alluding to the Empire mail route, he said attention would have to be turned immediately to questions of acceleration by means of night flying. He thought the public was sure to demand increased speed both for passenger and mail transport. He also expressed the belief that fewer obstacles would be placed in the way of commercial aviation since all countries appeared to be appreciating the advantages of air transport and to desire that its facilities should be extended.

RUBBER RESTRICTION

A Most Significant
Pronouncement

London, February 24.

The statement of Dr. Colijn, the Dutch Premier, to the effect that rubber restriction is necessary and desirable is the most significant pronouncement on the subject yet made, and the most definite advance, says the "Financial Times," remarking that the tin experience shows something of the possibilities in rubber restriction. The observing that the agreement in principle has not by any means solved all the difficulties.—Reuter.

R.M.S. Cornwall, which went home to be refitted, and recommissioned for further service on the China Station, arrived in the Colony from Singapore on Saturday morning. She is of the Fifth Cruiser Squadron.

THE ARMY

Two New Major-Generals

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, Feb. 7.

The promotion to major-general of two colonels was gazetted last night—Brigadier Donald E. Robertson, C.B., D.S.O., A.D.C., and Colonel Henry A. Lewis, C.B.E.

Brigadier Robertson is advanced at 54, after 34 years' service with the Indian Army, and is now Director of Personal Services at Army Headquarters, New Delhi. His regiment was the 11th King Edward's Own Lancers (Probyn's Horse), and on the Staff he was A.D.C. to Lieutenant-General Sir Malcolm Grover in the 14th Quetta Division, D.A.A.G. in France at G.H.Q., and with the 12th Division, A.A.G. at Mesopotamia headquarters, and Northern Command, commander of the Jhansi and Bareilly Brigades, and officiating O.C. of the Presidency and Assam District.

Colonel Lewis becomes a general officer at 54, after 26 years' artillery service. He is on the Ordnance and R.A. Committee, and in June will go to the War Office as Director of Artillery. As a subaltern he was at the defence and relief of Tientsin and Peking, and as a captain was with No. 75 Company, R.G.A. On passing the gunnery staff course he was instructor at Aden and Shoaiburg, and at Woolwich as an experimental superintendent. The latter work was continued under the Ministry of Munitions, with a break for service in France, and he returned to Shoaiburg as Superintendent of Experiments. For some time he was secretary of the Ordnance Committee, and was Assistant Director of Artillery at the War Office up to 1927. He is promoted with to-day's date in place of Major-General L. C. L. Oldfield, who to-day goes to the retired list on return from the Malaya Command at Singapore.

A debate will be held between the Hongkong University Graduates Association and the Education Society on the subject "that married women should have a professional career," on Wednesday 7th, March, at 8.30 p.m., in the Union Assembly Room of the University. Proposers: Mr. Law Chin Tang, Miss Josephine Wong; opposers: Miss E. Thom, Miss H. Yuen.

JAPAN TO HIT BACK

Commercial Retaliation

Tokyo, Feb. 15.

The Department of Finance is busily engaged in the study of measures to protect Japan's commercial rights abroad, or, in other words, the measures to be taken against nations bringing undue pressure on Japanese goods. The Department has been asked by the Foreign Office and the Department of Commerce and Industry to elaborate a suitable plan, and their intention is to introduce the necessary bill in the present session of the Diet.

It is still uncertain what shape the new bill will take, or what stipulations will be embodied in it. Mr. Takahashi, Minister of Finance, holds, as repeatedly noted in these columns, that when international economic aspects are changing constantly, the Government should legislative authority to take such measures as the occasion demands. It is highly probable, therefore, that the new bill will contain only fundamental rules, couched in an abstract form and with no detailed stipulations leaving everything to the discretion of the Government. In the event of the bill being passed into law, the Finance Minister, the Foreign Minister and Minister of Commerce and Industry will be at liberty to discussing tariffs and other matters, and taking what measures they think fit.—Japan chronicle

LAUNCH RUNS AGROUND

Mishap At Whampao

According to a Canton vernacular paper, it is reported that during the week-end, a steam launch, "Lee Tat" of the Yuen Fat Steamships Company, Limited, Canton, towing four cargo-junks, set sail to Canton from Sun Tung. While she was near Whampao, she ran aground on a submerged rock, near the east side of the Tung Po Village.

The launch was slightly damaged, but fortunately, was able to proceed on her way to Canton, and after she had unloaded her cargoes, she immediately sailed back to the Ho Nam Dock-yard for repairs.

CONTINENTAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Berlin, Feb. 25.

In the centre of the meetings held everywhere in Germany on Sunday on the occasion of the War Memorial day, stood the solemn State Ceremony in the Berlin Opera House. The Reichspresident, the Chancellor, who had returned in the early morning from Munich, all Ministers, the Commanders-in-Chief of the Army and Navy and numerous high Army Officers and Officers of the S. A. and S.S. partook in this solemnity. War Minister von Blomberg delivered the Memorial address which ended with the words "we salute our Dead Heroes in respect and gratitude with pride and our solemn assurance: we will live up to be worthy of their sacrifice."

After the song of the Good Comrade and Wagner's Funeral March from the "Gotterdammerung" Reichschancellor Hitler cheered from his Box "the everlasting German Nation and her leader in the Great War, Field Marshall von Hindenburg."

Afterwards the Reichspresident, Reichschancellor, the Ministers and the honorary guests went to the War Memorial in the "unter den Linden." The Reichspresident placed a wreath at the Monument and stood in silence for some moments. During the whole of the Sunday wreaths and flowers were placed at the Monument by representatives of various organisations.—Transocean Kuo Min.

Prague, February 25.

The three hundredth anniversary of the murder of Wallenstein at the height of his meteoric career by secret instructions of the Hapsburgs took place here to-day. The famous Schiller play "Wallenstein" was performed by players from all parts of Germany and was attended by thousands in honour of the soldier statesman in the archdeaconate attended also by Count Waldstein now in Prague. A few direct descendants of Wallenstein are still living, this gay freebooter and mighty organiser of men and lands who at one time administered possessions as large as Switzerland, at the same time waged half a dozen scattered campaigns.—Transocean Kuo Min.

The French technicians who have orders for more powerful military Aeroplanes, have designed a new four engine Bomber which at present is under construction. The plane according to Press reports will be able to carry out raids on any capital in Western and Central Europe without an intermediary landing. Athens, Feb. 25.

Architectural and constructional specialists were hastily mobilised on Sunday to save the world athletic ground at the base of the Acropolis from the greatest menace of destruction since the ancient times. The torrential rainfall of the recent storms have laid bare the sapping operations carried on to block the foundations from damage, which probably amounts to the work done during the whole of the last century. Conservation work has been begun at once while the committee is preparing a far reaching plan for the harmless disposal of the rain water which may cascade off the Parthenon and Propylean gate from now onwards.—Transocean Kuo Min.

Over night the way has been cleared for a new organisation of the State. The Party State Austria has ceased to be and after the dissolving of the other Parties, the Christian Socialists also have the duty to retire."

The Leader of the Christian Socialists Party, Czermak proclaimed the dissolving of the Party on Sunday; therefore Prince Starheimberg has come off as uncontested victor.—Transocean Kuo Min.

The agreement between London, Paris and Rome as to the serious consequences of Austria's suggested appeal to the League of Nations in addition to Mussolini as well as Prince Starheimberg, strongly advise her not to take this step.

as it would invoke the strongest dissatisfaction in Europe.

According to "Le Soir," the French Ambassador in Vienna further notified Dr. Dollfuss that France cannot in any way obstruct the free-working of the Little Entente, and no useful purpose would be served by referring Austria's destinies to all the Powers at Geneva.—Transocean Kuo Min.

Munich, Feb. 25.

The greatest gathering in history for the purpose of taking the oath of allegiance to their leader took place on the Koenigsplatz in Munich on Sunday. Rudolf Hess representing the leader read the oath which was broadcasted over one million leaders of the political organisation, office bearers and leaders and women leaders of the Hitler youth movement and the free labour service who had come for this ceremony from all parts of the country. The oath was read in most solemn fashion after which the words were repeated jointly by the huge gathering. More than 31,000 persons took part in the ceremony.

Ascending the platform Hess was greeted by the sound of trumpets and the spontaneous "Heil" calls from the huge crowd. The Reich secretary reported that 887,000 office bearers and subleaders had assembled to join in the oath of allegiance putting their lives anew and unconditionally into the hands of Adolf Hitler. After the speeches of the leader of the youth movement, Baldur von Schirach and the chief of the political organisation, Dr. Robert Ley, in which they confessed their faith to the leader, Rudolf Hess followed. He said "You are taking this oath on the day which is also for the first time celebrated in Germany as the day of remembrance to our heroes. A people without heroes is a people without a leader, because only a hero is a true leader and capable of overcoming difficult times. We honour heroism in itself and therefore cannot deny the respect which is due to those in Austria who died for their ideal and in the fulfilment of their duty although their ideal is recognised by us as wrong. The death of those who gave their lives to the ideal was no less heroic than the death of those men who fought and gave their lives fulfilling their duty as soldiers, perhaps against their own conviction. Hardly anyone fighting on either side was fully aware that he was the tool of unseen forces in the background. We are hoping that in the German civil war in Austria those forces were acting who always, war or no war, do nothing but good. If our hopes come true the sacrifices made, will not be made in vain. It is Adolf Hitler's strength that he produces results in the political field by the strength of his conviction and very rarely by commands. He must be sure, however, that if and when he issues orders or has orders issued, that those will be followed. The education to National Socialism would not be possible without 'interference' if it would not be backed by the S.A. 'The idea of a monarchist coup d'état is absurd, because the S.A. with their millions will be ready to stand for the National Socialists regime against any enemies of their ideals.' Hess closed his impressive appeal with the words 'we can give our oath of allegiance to a man who according to destiny will lead the German nation independent from all earthly powers. We come now to the oath. Repeat here and in all parts of the Fatherland: I swear inviolable faithfulness to Adolf Hitler, and unconditional obedience to him and to the leaders appointed by him.' Before the oath was taken the National anthem was sung and ten thousand arms were raised towards a brightly shining sun.—Transocean Kuo Min.

PRISONER'S DEATH INQUEST

Natural Causes Verdict Returned

Mr. Balfour with a jury comprised of Messrs. D. Harvey (foreman), W. A. Schreuder and J. P. Sherry sat at Central Magistracy yesterday to enquire into the death of Chang Hsueh Tseng, aged 48, who died in Victoria Gaol on Sunday afternoon while undergoing a term of ten years' penal servitude.

Chief Warder Buchanan stated that the deceased was sentenced at Weihaiwei on September 25, 1928, to ten years' penal servitude for assault and causing grievous bodily harm. He was admitted to Victoria Gaol on December 19 of that year. On January 22 last, he was admitted to the hospital and died on Sunday.

Dr. G. V. A. Griffith, said deceased was suffering from beri-beri and his condition had persisted since 1931. His admission to hospital was due to a relapse. On this occasion, he showed no improvement in treatment, became progressively worse and died. The post-mortem examination showed advanced beri-beri. Death, in his opinion, was due to beri-beri and cardiac failure.

After viewing the body the jury returned a verdict of death from natural causes.

AIRCRAFT AND AIR-FEATS OF 1933

In the production of aircraft as well as in the navigation of these machines, undoubtedly destined to become the supreme vehicle of future world transport, Great Britain has experienced notable progress during the year 1933. Magnificent flights which have been recorded show that for sheer courage and aeronautical skill the British pilot still takes his place in the front rank of flyers of all nations, while reports for the year from leading British aircraft manufacturers testify to the vitality of the industry.

To take the production first, several new and interesting aeroplanes and engines have appeared during the year. At the great Trade Display, organised by the Society of British Aircraft Constructors at Hendon at the end of June, forty-four different types of civil and military flying machines, ranging from large multi-engined air-liners and troop-carriers to small light sports machines, were assembled for inspection and demonstration. Among them was the world's fastest military machine, which, fully loaded, attains a level speed of over 250 miles an hour; also a machine equipped with the most powerful heavy-oil air-cooled motor yet flown, and fast mail-carriers and large and comfortable transport machines for the conveyance of passengers and goods. The best known of all light aeroplanes is probably the world-famous "Moth" range of British machines. During the year a new monoplane, the "Leopard Moth" intended to replace the "Epps Moth" has been added to the series. It has the same horse-power, as its predecessor, but it is more comfortable and has a greater carrying capacity than the old craft. Another new type, the twin-engined "Dragon" transport biplane, has already been sold in twelve different countries overseas and has proved as efficient and economical in the heat of Central Africa as in the cold of northern Canada. This machine is equally well suited for private as for commercial use and can carry up to ten passengers. The manufacturers of the above mentioned machines, the de Havilland company, found the year 1933 by far the most profitable in the firm's history. Another leading British firm, the Fairday Aviation company, reports great success in Belgium—where Fairey aeroplanes are extensively used in the army—and a gratifying increase in the exports of aeroplanes to the South American States.

The most spectacular flight of the year was the flight over Everest, the world's highest mountain, by two British aeroplanes. Photographs and observations taken during the flight made it possible to prepare the first accurate maps of these regions. Another remarkable achievement was the non-stop flight of a British aeroplane from Lincolnshire in England to Walvis Bay in South West Africa, a distance of 5,309 miles. This aeroplane was equipped with a remarkable British invention, a mechanical control apparatus automatically maintaining an accurate course once it is set. The journey occupied 57½ hours, and for more than 30 hours of this time the mechanical control steered the craft unerringly towards its goal. When visibility is poor this invention is invaluable. This non-stop flight set up a new record which was, however, broken later in the year by a fine flight of two French officers. Further, a fresh record was set up by British flyers for the journey between England and Australia; this vast distance being covered in six days and eighteen hours.

Small as is the British Royal Air Force—the entire strength, including reserve and auxiliary squadrons, is only 42 squadrons—it completed during the year an aggregate of over 40 million miles flying, at home and abroad. Although unfortunately immunity from accidents during flight is a dream of the future, calculations show that in the British Royal Air Force 10,000 hours are flown for each fatal accident, which reflects the greatest credit on the training of pilots and on the dependability of the machines they fly.

SIR ALEXANDER CADOGAN

Guest Of British Consul In Shanghai

Shanghai, February 26.
Greeted by a number of British officials, Sir Alexander Cadogan landed in Shanghai at 9.15 a.m. and proceeded to the British Consulate General where, with his wife, he will stay as the guest of Sir John and Lady Brennan while his daughters will register at the Cathay Hotel.
Interviewed by Reuter, he said he will do his utmost to foster Sino-British relations in a spirit of co-operation and friendship. He had not yet received instructions as regards the revision of the Sino-British Commercial Treaty, but he will study the question carefully, and submit his views to London.
Sir Alexander declared he will be leaving for Nanking on March 2, and intended to study the question of the removal of the British Legation from Peking, as in principle the Legation should not be so far from the capital.—Reuter.

CHANGE OF PLANS.
Shanghai, February 26.
Sir Alexander Cadogan's two younger daughters, Cynthia and Lillian, are suffering from measles and are being cared for in a house in the British Consulate compound. Sir Alexander and Lady Cadogan and their eldest daughter have changed their plans and are staying at the Cathay Hotel.—Reuter.

NAVAL TRAGEDY

A.B. Bain's Body Found

The body of A. B. Bain, of H.M.S. Whitshed, who was reported missing on February 18, was found at the Naval Anchorage, near H.M.S. Cornwall, yesterday afternoon.
By the finding of the body, the mystery of Bain's disappearance has been cleared up, for although there was a suspicion of him having committed suicide, at the time of his failure to turn up to duty, the Police issued a warrant for his arrest the next day for desertion.
Bain left duty at seven o'clock that morning for recess and when called up for duty again at 9.30 was found to be missing. Enquiries among the men elicited the information that a splash had been heard shortly after 8 o'clock and a search revealed that one of the ship's buckets was missing.
A report that a case of ammunition had fallen overboard from H.M.S. Whitehall which was lying alongside the Whitshed rather discredited the theory that Bain had thrown himself overboard, but it was later ascertained that the ammunition had fallen overboard much later than the time when the splash was heard.
Divers sent down to recover the ammunition, later in the day, found Bain's belt with the missing bucket attached.
At the time of the accident H.M.S. Whitshed was lying off shore alongside the Naval Canteen.

STORM TAKES TOLL

Many Casualties In America

New York, February 26.
A fall of eight inches of snow has been recorded at Illinois, and 16 inches in West Virginia. One woman has been frozen to death at Philadelphia.
Tornado-like winds at Meridian, Mississippi, Georgia and Alabama resulted in eight people being killed and 12 being injured. Properties were demolished.
One of the many aeroplanes searching the storm-swept Wasatch Mountains, yesterday sighted an air liner which has been missing since it left Salt Lake City on Friday in a blinding snowstorm, carrying eight passengers.
The airman described it as lying atop a canyon, but he was not able to determine whether or not it had been wrecked.—Reuter.
New York, February 26.
All the occupants of the air liner mentioned earlier were killed.—Reuter.

ANOTHER BLINDING SNOWSTORM

Another blinding snowstorm which began at midday lashed by a violent gale is harassing New England where the snow of Tuesday's blizzard is still piled high. Traffic is disorganised and the air services cancelled, and many long island families are still snowed in by the previous storm, and are threatened by an acute food and fuel shortage.—Reuter.

If Gossip We Must

By "Prudence"

It was a coat-and-skirt day at Happy Valley last Saturday. The rain of the previous day and the gray weather of the early morning made all the "lovelies" decide to play for safety—for it is better to look trim in a jersey suit than dragged in a flimsy frock—so, (as great minds nearly always think alike) all those who arrived before the sun had declared himself were smartly turned out in tweeds and serges, very much as they would be for a race-meeting at home in England.
And the result was 'delightful. The well-kept grounds helped to sustain the illusion. Never has the members enclosure looked nicer. Edging flowers, massed attractively against the green velvet of the lawns, gay music from an excellent instrumental band, and some first-class clivids. What more can the heart of the race-goer demand?
Miss Yvonne Shenton started well, for her pony Red Fox won second place in the first race of the first day of the first meeting she has attended, since she returned from England, (and paid a nice little dividend too).
The first real surprise of the day was the $335.50 paid by Dancing Butterfly. We have a shrewd suspicion that Mrs. "Bertie" Simpson was one of the wise ones on that (some people have all the luck) Miss Betty Johnson went about looking rather wistful since she leave. Mr. Sandes, Mr. Tinson, Mr. Dudley King and Mr. Hearnery were all to be found near the shroffs' desks on more than one occasion.

A scene outside the Lee Theatre after the matinee performance

Mrs. Stanton arrived just before tiffin, looking very smart and trim in black and white, with a yellow camellia in her buttonhole. Mrs. D. J. Lewis, too, looked immensely chic in black-and-white, and had a big tiffin party as usual, but really it would be impossible to chronicle all the numerous parties in these columns,—for the number was well over the twenties!

The kick at goal

missed backing it by a hair-breadth. Mrs. Syme Thomson was so busy collecting winnings all the time that she didn't mind how many people chaffed her about that triffl!
The lawns were very empty before tiffin and then filled up rapidly. Mrs. Sommerfeldt in Navy Blue was one of the earliest arrivals. Among the small crowd near the paddock we noticed Mr. Reeve (hard at work studying "form") and Mr. J. W. Alabaster who has only just returned from

THE INSEPARABLE TWO.

Mrs. Sheldon looked very businesslike in a smart little nut-brown suit. Mrs. Mike Turner wore the most alluring little turban-hat of green and brown with her dark coat and skirt. Mrs. Hill struck an original note in gray and pale yellow. Miss Pat Matter wore gray with a red tartan blouse. Mrs. Hole had a shoulder-cape coat, worn over a dress of brown and white patterned silk.
Mr. Sutton was still limping just a little after his bad go of gout, and thought himself lucky to be out and about, in time. Miss Barbara Sutton arrived just about tea-time looking very pretty in a nigger-brown coat and skirt, and with her was another very attractive young lady whom I see everywhere, (but have not yet discovered her name). Those two inseparables, Miss Audrey Steele and Miss Eve O'Hagan looked charming as always. Mrs. Frost in a gray-green suit seemed to lead a lot of ponies in (a most pleasing occupation I should think).

Mrs. L. C. F. Bellamy looked particularly fresh and charming in cerise with a cute little white waistcoat. Miss Barbara Balean had an extremely pretty coat-frock of beige elephant-crepe with large buttons and collar and cuffs of chocolate brown.

Mrs. A. K. Mackenzie looked very sweet in lupin blue, more with a gray squirrel coat. Mrs. Cassidy came with her sister who was all in black with a trim high collar and a black hat. Miss Legge Willis arrived at the sunniest moment of the afternoon looking delightfully appropriate all in white. Mr. Murdoch was most intrigued at the result of the "Trial Plate" for he was one of the four or five people who had backed "Hydroplane" and as he was on it both ways he must have netted nearly five hundred dollars.

Those who backed King's Warden had a lot to say about "new-comers who bump and bore and prevent a good pony from making a good start," and there are those who say they intend to keep a sharp look out to prevent a repetition of a certain annoying incident. One of the prettiest costumes of the day was the all-mulberry outfit worn by Mrs. Tam Pearce, who looked very happy and bright when she led in her favourite Trentbridge.
And so ends the first chapter of Race Week.

PRES. ROOSEVELT AND HIS TRADE ADVISERS Plans To Evolve Foreign Trade Policy

Washington, February 26. A liberal for the commercial policy according to Mr. Cordell Hull may be expected as the result of the round table conference today between President Roosevelt and his trade advisers, among whom an acute difference of opinion exists.

The conference is called to reconcile this difference and to evolve a definite and comprehensive foreign trade policy, aimed at increasing exports and also to discuss the question of asking Congress for authority to negotiate for reciprocal tariff agreements, particular attention being given to War Debts.

Financial and political circles are not surprised at the decision, to call the conference in view of the feeling that the tariff question is rapidly reaching a climax upon the question of whether or no prices can be held at the present level without some stimulant.—Reuter.

CHINESE PROTEST

That an artificial enhancement of silver value will do more harm to China than good was emphasized in a telegram despatched by several Chinese bankers in Shanghai to President Roosevelt. It was later reported that the President had replied to the bankers, saying that their views would be taken into consideration.

The telegram, it was reported, was sent by a small group of bankers in private capacity, and its text was therefore withheld from publication. Among those who were listed in the telegram were Mr. Chang Kia Ngau, general manager of the Bank of China, Mr. Li Min, general manager of the Chekiang Industrial Bank, Mr. Tsuyee Pei, manager of the Shanghai office of the Bank of China, and two others.

As was pointed out by Mr. Tsu in his recent statement, criticising the waiting attitude of the U.S. Administration in respect to a new monetization of silver, the group is, in unmistakable terms, opposed to the dilatory attitude and also the artificial enhancement of the silver price advocated on the theory that it would benefit China. In view of the adverse trade balance, the artificial raising of prices would deal a blow to China's welfare, it was pointed out.

PRODUCTION OF TIN

Burma Considering Restriction

Rangoon, Feb. 26. At a meeting of the Tavoy Chamber of Mines, the Chairman, Mr. Day, alluded to Burmese negotiations with an International Tin Committee for Burma's adherence to the restriction scheme. The opinion was expressed, however, that effective restriction will not operate in Burma.

In the meanwhile, the Government has stopped the issue of tin and wolfram prospecting licenses.—Reuter.

THE ZEEBRUGGE RAID

Story Retold To Bangkok Rotarians

Bangkok, February 14. How a speaker with an attractive subject will attract folk was evidenced by the last meetings of the Rotary Club when the 37 members present brought 24 visitors to hear Mr. Bill-yard-Leake, R.N., D.S.O., who was on the Iphigeneia in the raid on Zeebrugge on St. George's Day in 1918, describe some of his experiences and tell some stories. The Bangkok Club is now financially interested in the Roda and Mr. Sidney, its editor, contemplates bringing out a special Bangkok Rotarian which will observe it on Thursday, February 22nd. George Washington's birthday, with a dinner meeting with ladies and guests.

SPRING OPERATIONS IN MOROCCO

Two French Officers Killed

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages, Ordinance, 1894. Received, February 26, 7:30 p.m.)

Paris, February 26. The French spring operations in Southern Morocco has begun with the troops occupying a territory in Morocco protectorate and also the frontier in the neighbourhood of the Colony Riodeiro. Two divisions have been placed under the command of General Hure, and they will endeavour to accomplish the task of dividing the region between the regions near the Atlas Mountains as well as the big places leading to the Sahara Desert in order to place them under permanent French control. The population of these regions totalled 200,000 and it is believed that the military will operate in such a manner so as not to interfere with them as they are a settled and peaceful people. Few of the advanced guards however were involved in skirmishes during which two French officers and three soldiers were killed. It will be recalled that sometime ago trouble broke out in this neighbourhood with the French suffering heavy losses.—Transocean Kuo Min.

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")

Paris, February 26. The creation of a French contingent of shock troops composed entirely of professional soldiers and to be employed abroad wherever the necessity arises to back up the French policy by force, is advocated by the military correspondent of the "Echo de Paris," Andre Pirocheau, who is generally considered to be the spokesman of the French General Staff. Pirocheau advocates the proposal by pointing out that the question of maintaining peace is merely a question of power. France is urgently in need of a contingent of professional soldiers who would be employed outside French territory for "the prevention and repression of manoeuvres" in support of the French policy.—Transocean Kuo Min.

NINE STUDENTS KILLED

CAPTAIN EDEN'S VISIT

Further Meetings In Italy

Rome, February 26. The Italian Under Secretary of State, Sylich, returned from Budapest last evening and will meet Captain Eden to-day, after which Captain Eden's first meeting with Premier Mussolini will take place at 5 p.m.

The Italian Premier will give a dinner in honour of Captain Eden this evening and the latter will leave for London on Wednesday after further meetings with Mussolini.

The Press are of the opinion that no agreement is possible on the British plan as it is felt that no substantial measure of disarmament is possible. At present the best that can be hoped is agreement to prevent unlimited armament construction in the future. Therefore the Italian plan for the retention of the status quo with some rearmament for Germany is felt to be the only basis for a convention.—Reuter.

VISIT TO VATICAN

London, Feb. 26. The Lord Privy Seal, Anthony Eden, arrived in Rome on Saturday, and his first conversation with Signor Mussolini takes place to-day.

According to present arrangements, he will leave Rome for Paris on Wednesday morning.

Captain Eden has been warmly welcomed by the Italian Press.

This morning he paid a visit to the Vatican and was received in audience by the Pope.—British Wireless Service.

SIR G. CLERK FOR PARIS

Tribute To Retiring Ambassador

London, Feb. 26. The King has approved appointment of Sir George Russell Clerk, His Majesty's Ambassador at Brussels, to be Ambassador Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary in Paris in succession to Lord Tyrrell, who is shortly retiring.

The newspapers pay high tribute to Lord Tyrrell's great services and "The Times" says that his retirement is an obvious loss to British diplomacy "for all his professional absorption in foreign relations," adding that Lord Tyrrell has always taken so keen an interest in domestic politics that he will not lightly be allowed to disappear from public life altogether.

Deep personal regret is felt in official circles in Paris at news of Lord Tyrrell's retirement and all the Paris newspapers emphasise the value of his work in maintaining co-operation between Britain and France in post-war European problems.

It is understood that Sir George Clerk will undertake new duties in April. He was appointed to Brussels last year after having served as Ambassador to Turkey since 1920.—British Wireless Service.

SIR JOHN SIMON'S TRANSFER

Rumour Denied

London, February 26. The Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon, has denied the reports that he will probably be moved to the Home Office in the re-shuffle of the Government which might be expected shortly.

He declared that there was not the smallest foundation for this invention. It was rumoured on Saturday that Sir John Simon might be transferred in order to deal with the Fascist movement.—Reuter.

UNCONDITIONAL OBEDIENCE

Berlin, February 26. The celebrations in connection with the fourteenth anniversary of the establishment of the Nazi Party continued to-day, millions of Nazis swearing "inviolable loyalty to Adolf Hitler and unconditional obedience to those he appoints over me."

The principal ceremony yesterday in Munich was attended by Chancellor Hitler, who subsequently flew to Berlin to participate in the celebrations there.—Reuter.

CLASHES ON AUSTRIAN BORDER DENIED

Berlin, February 26. The rumours of clashes on the Austro-German frontier are officially described here as pure invention.—Reuter.

Salzburg, February 26. "Reinwehr" authorities here declare that they have no knowledge of the alleged frontier clashes.—Reuter.

LONDON QUITE CALM

Regarding The Silver Situation

London, Feb. 26. London bullion brokers are not perturbed by the silver situation. The recent activity was mainly confined to American speculators who commenced buying, but selling developed, owing to the belief in some quarters that President Roosevelt would take over the U.S. stocks of silver at a price not allowing for a large profit for speculators, but the opposite view also prevails, and on the balance, America is the buyer.—Reuter.

Debate In Houses Of Parliament

London, Feb. 26. Both Houses of Parliament will debate a temporary commercial agreement with Soviet Russia on Thursday.

In the Commons, the President of the Board of Trade, Mr. Walter Runciman, will explain the main features of the Treaty. "The Times" says that Lord Phillimore in the House of Lords will urge that the opportunity should now be taken to make representations to the Russian Government for a wide amnesty of political prisoners and return to their home of those in forced labour camps.—British Wireless Service.

DEMONSTRATION BY HUNGER MARCHERS

Enthusiasm Lessened By Rain

London, February 26. No disorders marked the much-heralded demonstration here of 2,000 so-called "hunger-marchers" yesterday when the 2,000 assembled in Hyde Park to protest against the Unemployment Bill.

Thousands of police were present to ensure order, while thousands of sympathisers or spectators, including women, children, and University students, watched the proceedings.

Rain lessened the enthusiasm of the demonstrators.—Reuter.

NO UNTOWARD INCIDENTS

London, Feb. 26. The demonstration in Hyde Park yesterday afternoon, which was attended by the unemployed who had marched from many parts of the country to London, was carried through in completely orderly fashion.

Speeches were made from eight platforms and a long resolution demanding, inter-alia, withdrawal of the Unemployment Bill was passed.

It is estimated that the demonstrators numbered about 10,000. Three arrests were made when a procession of local workers organisations was starting for Hyde Park from Canning Town, East London, but at Hyde Park no incidents occurred which called for the intervention of police.—British Wireless Service.

SCENES OF PRE-WAR SPLENDOUR

Berlin, February 26. There were scenes of pre-war splendour to-day when dense crowds in the morning watched the procession of Nazi Storm Troops and the Reichswehr Steel Helmets from Unter den Linden to Lustgarten where seventy thousand took oath of allegiance to Chancellor Hitler on the occasion of the fourteenth anniversary of the foundation of the Nazi Party.

The ceremony was broadcast throughout Germany, and after the ceremony, honour was paid to Germany's two million war dead, held in the Opera House and attended by President von Hindenburg, Chancellor Hitler and members of the Cabinet.

General Blomberg, in a speech re-affirmed Germany's innocence in causing the war and Herr Hitler called for cheers for the eternal German nation and its leader, the Great War, Field Marshal von Hindenburg, after which the President laid a wreath at the War Memorial and reviewed the Reichswehr Steel Helmets with Herr Hitler and the Ministers.—Reuter.

CANTON DAY BY DAY

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, February 26. Mr. Lin Yun, Chairman of the Kwangtung Provincial Government, accompanied by General Li Yang Ching, officer commanding the third army of the First Group Army, left to-day by train for an inspection tour of East River districts. During Mr. Lin's absence, his duties will be temporarily taken over by Mr. Ho Kai Lai, secretary general of the Provincial Government.

Chairman Lin's final destination will be Swatow, where General Li Yang Ching has his Pacification Headquarters. After visiting the eastern districts, Mr. Lin will tour other parts of the province.

The Provincial Department of Reconstruction is planning to establish a cattle breeding station in the four directions of the province and one in Hainan Island. The authorities found that the breeding of animals by farmers and others is still undertaken in a haphazard way with the result that horses, cows and pigs are often under-nourished and sometimes carry contagious diseases.

The Bureau of Agriculture of the Department of Reconstruction is instructed to choose five places to building the cattle breeding stations. There are numerous wheat and grass can be grown in abundance to feed the various stocks.

After months of deliberations the South-west Foreign Affairs Research Institute has been renamed South-west Foreign Affairs Discussion Committee which will be formally inaugurated next month. Mr. Tang Shao Yi, member of the South-west Political Council and concurrently magistrate of Chung Shan Model County, will be the head of the Committee.

Mr. Tang is asked to take charge of this new organ, because he was one-time acting premier and minister of foreign affairs of the Peking Government and received his university education in the United States.

Government and Party offices will not employ any persons who served in the People's Revolutionary Government at Foochow. By joining a non-Kuomintang government, they are not allowed to work in any government organ here which is organized and functions in accordance with the principles of that Party.

Leaders of the defunct Foochow government are liable to be arrested here.

Canton, February 26. The ceremony of the inauguration of the police hospital and the trial of the fire boat took place last Saturday afternoon. Canton, February 26. Over one hundred Communist bandits were killed in New Mountain, Kiangsi, on February 16 in a furious battle between about 300 bandits and the troops of the 4th Division of the Kwangtung 1st Group Army. The remnants were reported to have retreated towards the north.—Central Press.

Canton, February 26. Much progress has been made in the development of sugar industry of this province, since the Bureau of Agriculture and Forestry drew up a scheme for the purpose. More than five hundred mow of land in the Canton district is going to be used for plantation of improved species of canes from the Philippines. Over ten thousand mow in Shaoh and Whampoa, in the Panyu district, are to be converted for cane planting. Supply will certainly be sufficient to meet demand when the First Sugar Refinery starts operations in April. While the construction of the First Sugar Refinery is being completed, that of the second one also in Sin-cho is being started. Large quantity of sugar is estimated to be produced within five thousand mow of land included in the soldiers' Rehabilitation territory and twenty thousand mow of farmers' land are also to be used for sugar cane plantation, so that supply of raw materials may be maintained when the sugar refinery of this territory starts operation and other time of sugar cane harvest is now under way.—Central Press.

Canton, February 26. At the last meeting of the Provincial Judicial Conference, General Chen Chi-tang at the request of Mr. Luk Chi Tsing, head of the Provincial court, made a speech on the necessity of judicial reform. In the course of his address, General Chen emphasized practice of care, and leniency in imprisoning accused, settlement of accumulated cases, efficient prosecution, prohibition of receiving bribes, and improvement in prisons. All those attending the conference were entertained at dinner by the Provincial and City Kuomintang last Saturday evening.—Central Press.

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, February 26. Restoration of the Party leadership in the Kuomintang as proposed by the Nanking National Government is seriously opposed by the Kuomintang veterans here on the ground that the present committee system has been working satisfactorily since the death of Dr. Sun Yat Sen and that a revival of the old system would bring about dictatorship in the Party.

Nanking proposed that each province should be governed by a civil governor and that each provincial Kuomintang headquarters should be controlled by a Party leader. The first proposal is acceptable to the South-west authorities provided Mr. Lin Yun Kai, the Chairman of the Kwangtung Provincial Government, is appointed civil governor of this province.

The second proposal is rejected because the Kuomintang cannot be placed in the hands of a single leader since the death of Dr. Sun Yat Sen. As a founder and leader of the Party, Dr. Sun was the acknowledged head of the Party without any dissenting view, but after his passing no substitute can be found to take his place. Therefore, Party affairs, whether central, provincial or county, have been changed to the committee system.

It was observed in political circles here that if a Party leader is desired, there are only two men eligible, namely Mr. Hu Han Min or Mr. Wang Ching Wei. Mr. Hu, it is pointed out, is living quietly in Hong Kong and will never go to Nanking under the present regime. Then Mr. Wang Ching Wei would be the Party leader, but Wang is in close co-operation with General Chiang Kai Shek. That would mean that Party Affairs will be in the hands of a military man.

It is understood that both Kwangtung and Kwangsi will make known their objection to the leadership system in a circular telegram to be released sometime this week.

OLD CHINA HAND DEAD

Dr. H. B. Morse Passes Away in London

The death occurred in London on Feb. 20 of Dr. Hossa Ballou Morse, D.D., formerly in the employ of the Imperial Chinese Customs Service.

Aged 78, Dr. Morse was born in Brookfield, Nova Scotia. He started as an assistant in the Imperial Chinese Customs in 1874, and, by 1930, had risen to the post of Statistical Secretary to the Inspector-General.

In 1885, he was sent by Imperial decree on a special mission in connection with peace terminating the Franco-Chinese war, while, in 1889, he was appointed, by Imperial decree, as special commissioner to arrange for the opening of the province of Hunan to foreign trade.

Dr. Morse was the author of many publications on China, the best known being "The Chronicles of the East India Company in China," in five volumes; "In the Days of the Taipings" (An Historical Retrospect); "The International Relations of the Chinese Empire," in three volumes; and (with Prof. H. F. MacNair of St. John's University, Shanghai) "Far Eastern International Relations."

At the last meeting of the Provincial Judicial Conference, General Chen Chi-tang at the request of Mr. Luk Chi Tsing, head of the Provincial court, made a speech on the necessity of judicial reform. In the course of his address, General Chen emphasized practice of care, and leniency in imprisoning accused, settlement of accumulated cases, efficient prosecution, prohibition of receiving bribes, and improvement in prisons. All those attending the conference were entertained at dinner by the Provincial and City Kuomintang last Saturday evening.—Central Press.

Canton, February 26. According to the spokesman of the Canton-Hankow Railway, great progress has been made in building the Lokohang-Pingshan section. Up to the present time construction of the four tunnels on that section has been completed. It is expected that actual service will be started next August on the section from Lokohang to Pingshan, and the section from Pingshan to Hankow will be completed by the end of the year.—Central Press.

THE TROOPING SEASON

Hussars And Green-jackets Home Next Week

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, Feb. 7. During February the Army trooping programme will be well advanced towards completing the movements of units abroad and the transference home of those units whose overseas service is completed.

On Monday the 1st Battalion, The Rifle Brigade is due at Southampton from Khartoum, and will go into the 9th Infantry Brigade at Gosport. On Tuesday the 15th/19th The King's Royal Hussars arrive from Risalpur, and go to Shorncliffe. Army drafts leave for the Mediterranean, Aden, and India on February 14 and 16, the latter being the final outward voyage to India with military personnel, taking also naval details for the East Indies Squadron. On February 22 the "transport Somersetshire" will begin a naval voyage, with crews for the China fleet, and this will be the last out-and-home voyage of long duration, covering a period of 60 days.

The return of the Somersetshire to Southampton from China on May 10 will mark the close of the present trooping season, which began on September 15 with the departure of the Nevada from Southampton for India. In addition to the Somersetshire, one other voyage to China has been made during this trooping season. This was by the transport Nevalia, which left Southampton last September and carried out all the moves of infantry battalions to and from the China Stations—namely, the 2nd Battalion, The Worcestershire Regiment, from Malta to Shanghai, the 2nd Battalion, The East Lancashire Regiment, from Shanghai to Hongkong, and the 2nd Battalion, The Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, from Shanghai to India.

The programme of reliefs for 1934-35, which will be carried out next trooping season, contains the following moves affecting the China Stations:—

1st Battalion, The Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, from Bordon to Shanghai; 2nd Battalion, The Worcestershire Regiment, from Shanghai to Tientsin; 1st Battalion, The Queen's Royal Regiment, from Tientsin to India; 2nd Battalion, The Royal Welch Fusiliers, from Gibraltar to Hongkong; and 1st Battalion, The South Wales Borderers, from Hongkong to India.

FAMOUS ADMIRAL

Cruise In The Antarctic

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, Feb. 7. Evans of the "Broke" in other words, Vice-Admiral E. R. G. Evans, Commander-in-Chief of the Africa Station—is going south again.

He will set out to renew his acquaintance with the Antarctic regions, in connections with which he is already world-famous as an explorer.

Approval has been received from the Admiralty for him to make a cruise in the Antarctic region in the sloop Milford, which will sail from Simonstown on February 16 and is due to return on March 2. Her cruise will cover a wide area of the great Southern Ocean and she will probably visit South Georgia and approach the Falkland Islands.

She is also to call at Bouvet Island, one of the mystery islands of the Southern Ocean. First noted by a French naval explorer in 1795, the island was lost again for years, and even now its position by the charts is marked as "doubtful."

The Milford, whose cruise will cover a large extent of ocean now being hunted over by whaling ships, is one of the new class of sloops constructed for the Royal Navy, three of which are serving at the Cape.

One of the reasons given for the Milford's cruise is the taking of scientific observations and accurate measurements of magnetic variations.

In spite of the great advances made in navigation, relatively little is known regarding magnetic variations affecting the compasses of vessels in these seas, and as a result of the Milford's run south, valuable data is expected to be collected. The cruise is looked upon as an ordinary routine job of work for the Navy. Actually the Africa Station is the most extensive and important work done in the Canton-Hankow Railway section from Lokohang to Pingshan, and the section from Pingshan to Hankow will be completed by the end of the year.—Central Press.

HOME FOOTBALL

CHAMPIONS BEATEN AT HOME

Everton Halves Master The Attack

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, Feb. 7.
Arsenal 1, Everton 2.
There must now be fears that Arsenal have struck the slippery downward slope. They were beaten at home for the second time in four days. Everton improving their position by walking off with two points.

The most disturbing feature about the latest Arsenal defeat is the suggestion that even the fans are beginning to conspire against them. There can be no question that they were unlucky to lose yesterday.

They scored the first goal after sixteen minutes, Birkett coming through the maze to bang the ball into the net. Everton's response came like a shot, with a fine run through by Cunliffe—the best player on the field—and a long shot which had Moss beaten all the way.

For twenty minutes after this the Arsenal forwards just peppered Sagar, but the Everton goalkeeper was only beaten once, and then Williams was under the bar to head the ball away.

That was the Arsenal's big effort. It failed them, and because of their ultrastrident mid-week match they had not the energy left for a rally in the second half.

Coleman Injured
An injury to Coleman added to their handicap, and fifteen minutes after the restart White, playing at outside right for a few minutes scored the winning goal for the visitors, from Thomson's pass.

We did not see a lot of the new man, Stevenson, in this match. He was very Scottish in his movements: deliberate, and often surprised by the pace of the game in general.

Due credit must be given to the Everton defence for a really fine display. Williams was the superman, and the wing halves, Britton and Thomson, gave their forwards plenty of support.

Although John was quite good, the wing half-backs of the Arsenal could not compare with those of Everton, and apart from their one brilliant spell the forwards were disappointing.

Something will have to be done about this Arsenal attack. Some of the spectators obviously thought so when they started a chorus: "We want Jack." A player who could have controlled the ball, held it, and made the telling pass was badly needed.

Coleman, who had injured his right knee, was taken to hospital, where an X-ray examination showed that no bone was broken. Are Arsenal slipping?

HARLEQUINS. TOO SPEEDY

Weak Northampton Side Gallant Losers

Harlequins 21 pts., Northampton 6.
The Harlequins defeated Northampton at Twickenham by three goals and two tries to two tries. County claims so depleted the Northampton team that they were represented by a young and—in the main—inexperienced side, for which Rutherford, the 17-year-old full-back and Bradley, the stand-off half, were making their first appearance.

Despite these handicaps they played an enthusiastic and whole-hearted game, their forwards doing especially well, for they had the better of the scrummages, and by hard following-up in the loose caused the Harlequin defence many anxious moments.

Things did not go so well, however, behind the scrum, where, though Ennes worked like a Trojan, they were yards slower than the Harlequins and unimaginative in attack.

At times the Harlequin line worked with a speed and precision that was astonishing considering the treacherous state of the ground. Hodge's two tries, though flattered by Northampton's lack of speed, were excellent efforts.

The Harlequins' first try was the result of a run and cross-kick by Gould. R. E. Prescott, fielding the awkwardly bouncing ball, failed to score. Dunkley converted. Clever play by Ennes and a rush by Ford took play to the other end, and after Ennes had slipped away Jackson got the touch-down, but the kick failed.

Strong running and swift passing by Gould and Tilling cleared the way for Hodge to score a try, but the angle was too wide for Dunkley, who, however, kicked another goal, when Hudson followed a kick-ahead and shook off a tackle to run straight in between the posts.

Again Hodge put the finishing touch to a fine piece of work by Tilling, and then Northampton began a vigorous attack, which ended in Williams scoring in the corner.

Just on time R. E. Prescott crossed again for the Harlequins. Dunkley kicking his third goal.
Harlequins:—S. A. Block; J. A. Harrison, H. J. Gould, T. H. Tilling, P. E. Hodge; G. E. C. Hudson, G. J. Dean; A. E. C. Prescott, L. R. Leach, C. Thompson, P. E. Dunkley (capt.), H. P. Skinner, R. E. Prescott, F. D. Russell-Roberts, and R. Bolton.

Northampton:—K. A. Rutherford; D. King, L. H. Garrett, R. C. Clayton, R. G. Willows; J. T. Bradley, R. H. A. Ennes; W. Butcher, E. Evans-Evans, V. Watkins, F. E. Harris, W. M. Jackson (capt.), J. W. Percival, P. Clarke, and L. Ford.

WORRALL SAVES PORTSMOUTH

Sheffield United Robbed Of Point

Portsmouth 1, Sheffield U. 1.
Portsmouth escaped defeat dramatically less than two minutes from the end, at Fratton Park, when Worrall, racing to a through pass by Weddie, got his foot to the ball just in time to beat an advancing goalkeeper.

It was a splendid effort by the outside right, but the effect of it was to deprive Sheffield United of a victory much-needed and entirely merited on the play.

Portsmouth were on top only until Oxley, a most persevering centre-forward, got his head to a corner kick to put United ahead after half-an-hour. From that point Portsmouth were outplayed.

The further the game went the poorer they became, and the equalising goal was a complete surprise.

The ground was hard with frost, and this undoubtedly had a large influence on the play. Portsmouth's close-passing style was most unprofitable, while the wide-flung game of Sheffield was just suited to the conditions.

Portsmouth's Strength
Still, the fact was that the United were the better team and only shaky finishing and the strength of Portsmouth's defence denied them several goals. Williams and Oswald were lively wing raiders who put the ball across well, and were also willing to cut in to shoot. Then Pickering and Barclay showed fine craft in the inside positions, drawing opponents and placing their passes cleverly.

Pickering would be a great inside forward if he were less erratic and quicker to reach the penalty area when centres come across. He made only one scoring attempt, and then missed an easy goal.

Allen, with his sure head and quick feet, was always a stumbling block to Oxley; in fact, the Portsmouth centre-half was a wrecker of hopes all round. Smith and Mackie were often beaten for position, but Allen was generally on the spot to prevent the scoring shot.

Holmes did extremely well to smother Weddie as he did, and Stacey broke up the dangerous Bagley-McCarthy wing with surprising ease. But it was a terribly disappointing Portsmouth attack.

McCarthy could not act on the slippery surface. Jack Smith failed to control his passes, and Worrall, unable to use his pace, was very ordinary.

GOLF Oxford Halve At Woking

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, Feb. 26. Oxford confirmed the good opinion they have already won when they halved their match with a representative Club side at Woking on Saturday, each side winning nine games on the day's play. In fact, it was generally agreed by those who had seen them play on both occasions that their form had improved since the meeting with West Hill.

The weather was all against golf, a hard night's frost making the early play very chancy, before, with the wind veering suddenly from the north into the west, drizzle and mist combined to make visibility poor and conditions far from pleasant. This time Oxford did well in the foursomes, which they won by four matches to two. K. A. S. Morris and E. H. Moss set the pace by gaining a really creditable victory over T. A. Torrance and G. D. Hannay, an ideal foursome couple to whom Woking with all its subtleties is an open book. It was a great match with a grand finish. At the end of five holes Woking were two up. Oxford squared them at the eighth and took the lead for the first time at the 13th, but Woking, winning Harley Street and the Pond hole, were one up with two to play. Oxford, down in 2 from the edge of the 17th green, squared the match, and then came the epic that flavoured the whole of the struggle. At the Home hole, after two good approaches, Torrance and Morris were each left with putts of some six yards for 3. Torrance was first "away", and his ball, beautifully and truly struck, pulled up only a few inches short. That was Morris's opportunity and once again he lived up to his reputation, for down went his putt. J. J. Pennink and A. A. Duncan beat T. A. Bourne and E. Martin-Smith by four and two, a feather in their respective caps, and then R. F. Brown and R. D. Knox made a wonderful recovery against Sir Harold Gillies and Fish. They were actually four down with eight holes to play, but won the next five off the reel and won on the Home green. A. G. Robinson and N. S. Mitchell-Innes obtained the last of Oxford's victories, beating Dr. Gardiner Hill and T. P. Whitaker by three and two, an excellent performance, and then at length it was Woking's turn.

In the singles Woking did better, but they just failed to snatch a victory, thanks to the good golf of the last two Oxford players, R. G. de Quincey and C. W. N. Plant. In the leading match Morris had a trying but valuable experience against Torrance. This great golfer was at his best: he started 3, 3, 4, 3, nearly holed another 3 at the fifth, missed a shortish putt for a 3 at the ninth and, out in 34, was five up on Morris, who was out in 39. Torrance took three putts at the 10th and Morris seized his opportunity and, after a fine drive and a perfect approach, holed out from four yards for a 3 at the 11th to put himself within striking distance. To the 12th he put himself in the ideal position, well to the left of the tee, but then played a weak approach, was bunkered, and that was the end.

Pennink squared matters by beating Martin-Smith and, after Bourne had just beaten Moss, Brown put things all even again by laying Gillies three stymies in five holes at the crucial period of the game. With Woking winning five and losing two out of the next seven matches, Oxford were two down with two to play on the day, but then "De Quincey and Plant came to the rescue. De Quincey, discarding a steel-shafted putter for an old Willie Park clock, found inspiration and literally putted Major G. de Quincey out of it, and Plant, making his first appearance for Oxford, won a hard match from R. Gilroy on the home green, and saved his side.

POKER-FACED GENERAL Man Who Created The Reichswehr

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, Feb. 7. General von Seeckt, who is going to China at the invitation of General Chiang Kai-shek, should do well there. His outstanding characteristic is his inscrutability. He has a poker face.

At the same time he looks every inch a soldier, although there are not many inches. He is a short man, with a trim carriage, a thick white moustache, and a monocle. He is a man of vision; he conceived and created the Reichswehr.

He was in China last summer, ostensibly on holiday.

The reason for his surprisingly rapid return is said to be a "rebellion" among the ninety-odd German officers attached to the Nanking armies. The writer has his doubts about that rebellion.

The Germans are mostly there as advisers and instructors. They never lead the Chinese troops in action. Their disaffection is not likely to be serious. Possibly they resent being saddled with an unjust share of the official blame for the failure of the Government's anti-Communist campaign.

Three Chief Advisers. At present the three principal advisers are General Wetzel, Colonel Heintz and General Gudovius. The two latter the writer once met in the interior of China at Lushan, a mountain resort which the missionaries have renamed, with appalling facetiousness, Kuling.

Government officials go there, as its new name suggests, to escape the hot weather.

General Gudovius, a Polesian figure, had learned that it was hopeless to take his duties too seriously. He had, however, a firm belief in the potentialities of the Chinese soldier as a fighting man under foreign leadership.

History confirms his belief. Gordon's Chinese levies did splendid work against the Taipings.

NERVOUS SELLING OF FRANCS

Dangers Of Rubber Restriction Delays

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, February 7. Yesterday's most debated question in financial circles was whether France would ultimately be forced off gold. To this, of course, no authoritative answer was forthcoming. Usually well-informed bankers, however, not only doubted the need, but also the expediency.

Nevertheless the acute nervousness cannot be gainsaid. A fight from the franc seemed to be in progress, and a recurrence of the selling on yesterday's scale, which emanated as much from Paris as from other centres, might have disturbing repercussions. The climax was reached when 800 was touched, against 77 1/2 at the opening. There was some abatement of the excitement at the end, as was shown in a reaction to 79 3/4.

France is so abundantly provided with gold reserves that a drain of formidable magnitude could be faced calmly were it not that political conditions have so deteriorated. When politics are injected into a financial atmosphere prophecy is gratuitous.

The storm which has arisen may abate quickly, but meanwhile it is profitable to take gold from the Bank of France with the franc at yesterday's rate of exchange. It was suggested that there were possibilities that the Bank of France might vary conditions for selling gold to retard the outflow of bullion. This, as stated in another column, is strenuously denied. Such impressions that seemed reliable decided the possibility of any change in the determination of the French to adhere to the Gold Standard.

THE GOLD HUNGER

One curious feature of the situation was that while French investors were disturbed as to the future of the franc and were selling their own currency, they were converting the proceeds of this movement of capital into gold in London. The suggested reason for this preference was the lack of confidence that gold would be available in France. Whatever the explanation, an exceptionally heavy turnover of bullion was reported yesterday, and it was estimated that there was as much gold after the fixing as there was disposed of the official sales, when $1,500,000 changed hands. Hoarders are so eager to sell their gold at 27 per oz. as others are to purchase.

Dollar discussions were almost eclipsed by the prominence of the franc. The New York exchange was kept steady by buyers of gold in London and Paris selling their dollar exchange. Despite the new record price of 140s for bar gold, Kaffirs yielded to profit-taking, and the buoyancy was checked by the absence of fresh buyers.

RUBBER'S FRESH JUMP

Spot rubber jumped at one time yesterday to 4 31-32d per lb., the highest price for 34 years. The price went off a shade in the late dealing to 4 15-16d, which was 1-32d up on Saturday's closing quotation. The only apparent cause of the fresh outburst of speculative buying was the Dutch Prime Minister's statement, in his capacity as Colonial Minister, that the Dutch Government may be able to reach a decision on rubber restriction "in not too long a time."

The market effect seems disproportionate to the cause, since the statement adds virtually nothing to what was already known. In their present mood speculators seem unwilling to admit the possibility of an adverse decision. In favour of this attitude it may be argued that the Dutch, having taken the initiative in reopening the restriction negotiations, in full knowledge of the formidable difficulties of controlling native output in the Dutch East Indies, and having virtually promised to devise a scheme to that end, cannot now admit that the task is insuperable and that their promise was given lightly.

DANGERS OF DELAY

Against that view must be considered the prolonged delay in announcing agreement upon an effective scheme. The reason for the delay, it is believed, is that certain major difficulties have yet to be overcome. These difficulties mainly concern the application of restriction to Dutch native producers. The full adherence of Siam and Sarawak has not yet been secured, but it is expected that they will fall into line.

In other respects, it is understood, the main outlines of the scheme and the quotas to be allotted to the participating countries have been agreed upon, subject to Government sanction. While, however, the quota for the Dutch East Indies as a whole has been settled, no announcement has yet been made as to the respective proportions to be allocated to native and estate rubber or as to the means by which the export of native rubber will be regulated.

MINIATURE WIRELESS

Micro-Ray Service To France

Lympe, January 26.

A wireless set with an aerial less than an inch in length and a wavelength of about 60 ft. is now working across the Channel for the benefit of aircraft operating between England and the Continent. The set is proof against interference and atmospheric; it is capable of maintaining telephonic and telegraphic communication at the same time; and the power it needs for transmitting is about equal to that of a pocket torch.

The new system of communication has been established between Lympe and the French aeroplane station of St. Inglevert, near Boulogne. Its range in this case is only 35 miles, and its range in any circumstances appears to be limited to the visual range determined theoretically by the curvature of the earth's disk. Actual visibility has little relation to the range, because fog and rain do not affect the tiny waves. What does seem impossible is to train them to follow the line of the earth's surface or to get themselves reflected back from one of the ionized layers in sufficient strength for reproduction in receivers on the earth.

Their range has thus to be a horizontal line above the earth's surface, and if that is to be lengthened the two stations must be set on high towers. This consideration does not arise here, for the micro-ray, as it is called, is required simply to perform a cross-channel service. Hitherto aeroplanes passing over Lympe on their way to France have had to be reported by telephone to Crotoy and thence by wireless to St. Inglevert, a station which has to handle four separate wave-lengths. Delay has sometimes occurred, and the aeroplane has crossed the French coast unannounced and unnoticed, with occasional confusion and alarm.

A CURRENCY WAR?

British Equalisation Fund Discussed

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, February 6. Will there be a currency war? We hope not, but the position at the moment is certainly cause for anxiety. So far, we have Mr. Chamberlain's "definite" statement that no negotiations for an Anglo-American agreement are in progress. On the other hand, we have the suggestions from Washington that such conversations could be initiated, and if they could result in formulating some common objective for the two countries, much of the uncertainty existing to-day would be dissipated.

When, in July last year, President Roosevelt broke off the negotiations for a world currency agreement, he was at the beginning of his currency policy. To-day the position is very different. He is back on gold. It is true that there are still possibilities of variation in the gold value of the dollar involved in the option he has given to himself of revising the decision announced this week. While he insists on holding this option, international agreement on fixed currency gold values is obviously impossible. But the step he has taken is really an immense move along the path back to gold, and every encouragement should be given to him to go further.

Problem To Be Faced

Some indication of the American attitude will become available as the new $2,000,000,000 Equalisation Fund begins to operate. Mr. Chamberlain was explicit in explaining that our own Equalisation Fund has not been used to create an artificial value for sterling or for bringing about a return to the gold standard. Its only purpose is to correct temporary fluctuations in the exchange value of sterling. If the American fund is operated with a similar singleness of purpose, then all will be well.

The alternative was well put by Mr. Rupert Beckett, the chairman of the Westminster Bank, at this week's annual meeting when, pointing out that recent movements showed that the world valued the dollar at more than 60 cents, he suggested that if devaluation to that level was to be made effective the American fund must be put into operation. He continued:—

The question immediately arises whether the British Equalisation Fund will be used to counteract the effect of American operations. Such a conflict is unlikely, unless it were proved that a 60 cent dollar was having a detrimental influence on our export trade. In that event a clash of the trade interests of the two countries might culminate in a currency tug-of-war. This possibility, however remote, must be squarely face and guarded against, for its development would make confusion worse confounded in exchange markets.

The Essential Need

The need of the world to get back to gold was emphasised by Mr. Colin F. Campbell, in presiding at the meeting of the National Provincial Bank. "Before international trade can be expected to recover anything like its old prosperity," he said, "it is essential that we should get back to something like the system under which rates of exchange were kept steady by an international monetary standard."

It was quite true, he continued, that the position of the pound sterling is to-day one of unique strength and prestige, thanks to sound policy and the support of British taxpayers and investors, and he was convinced it will remain so as long as "we are not led away into commodity values or silver values, or in fact any basis but that of gold."

If the world would return to freedom from restrictions to the sanctity of contracts and to honouring of obligations all based on a common currency foundation, then, Mr. Campbell declared, international confidence would be restored and international trade would quickly recover.

of easiness; there was considerable activity in Shanghai Lands the amount of business done amounting to 2,150, between 28.25 and 24.50, closing with a sale of 300 at the latter price. The rubber market improved owing to the rise in the price of the raw material in London, New York and Singapore. Private cables received from London and New York showed bullishness on improved consumption and demand. Interest in the debenture market was well maintained; Metropolitan 6 per cent. appreciated to $104.75. The market was most uneventful on Saturday, except the great interest which was shown for rubbers. The leader of the market was Tenah Merah with a turnover of 20,000 shares. Shanghai Lands experienced another drop of 25 cents, the shares being placed at 24.25 February. During Monday's trading some steadiness manifested itself, but the volume of business remained small. The action of Shanghai Lands was more satisfactory as some buying support came in and the last sales were done at 24.75. The rubber section showed slight business.
